

New York Stock Market

New York, April 30.—Reaction and reaction which dominated operations on the Stock Exchange today generally attributed to a variety of causes or reasons. The most prominent were the Massachusetts primary and the possibility of another hitch in the negotiations between the railway managers and the engineers, the quarterly statement of the United States Steel Corporation and the government's weekly weather report dealing with crop conditions.

Steel shares were moderately strong during the greater part of the day. Reading and Lehigh Valley rose and fell alternately. Baltimore and Ohio was the strongest of the standard railway shares. A number of specialties made smart gains, including National Biscuit and Pacific Telephone.

Final quotations were generally under pressure. London was again a seller, its offerings including Steel Amalgamated Copper, Canadian Pacific and Union Paper.

Money conditions locally were practically unchanged. There was an increased demand for call money. The bond market was irregular, with a sharp break in Allis-Chalmers.
